AGS Records Management, a subsidiary of the MOBILITAS Group, consolidates its position as a leader in physical and digital records management in Zambia

Zambia, May 28, 2024 - The MOBILITAS Group, which specialises in global mobility management, physical and digital records management solutions, as well as the digitisation, conservation and sharing of cultural and historical heritage, confirms its growth ambitions on the African continent with the acquisition of Flexifile, a leader in archiving and records management in Zambia.

This acquisition is a continuation of the group's growth strategy in East Africa. After Kenya, Mozambique, Uganda and Rwanda, Zambia is a significant step and positions AGS Records Management as the industry benchmark, specialising in the management and conservation of archives and records.

"Our historical presence in every country on the African continent makes AGS Records Management a reliable and relevant player in responding to the challenge: to promote the emergence of information technologies used to digitise, archive and process all types of documents in Africa."

Nathalie Jeanneau - Director of the AGS Network in Africa

Since 2013, Flexifile has supported its clients, mainly from the banking sector, in the optimisation of their records management. Its expertise is found in its high-quality personalised service offering. The synergies between Flexifile and AGS Records Management will make it possible to offer Zambian companies and local institutions a complete range of agile and innovative solutions in document management: archiving audit and consulting, physical archiving, records management and digitisation of document processes.

Today, AGS Records Management is the only player in Zambia to offer its customers a service offer adapted to each document management need.
